

Praises and Prayer Requests for the Week of November 15, 2020

Praises for:

Jesus' "road map" to "the good life" in the Beatitudes; praises for those who work toward peace and non-violence; praises for Jesus's life showing us the way of non-violence and peace.

This season when we can spend time intentionally considering the many things for which we can give thanks and the beauty of autumn; the warmth of homes and family and friends

The hard work that has gone into developing vaccines for COVID-19, some of which are showing promise

Friendship, fellowship, our shared life in Christ, which a pandemic and physical distance cannot destroy

Peggy Barber's friend, Heidi Day, who was well enough to be moved from ICU to a regular room as she recovers from blood clots in her lungs

All of those who have come through recent surgeries well and are recovering

Prayers for:

Leaders, local, state, national, and worldwide; prayers for leadership to align with God's kingdom values

An end to the divisiveness that exists within our nation so that we can work together toward a more positive future for all people

Those who are working to curb the rise in COVID-19 cases and all those who are impacted by COVID-19, whether they or a loved one are sick

All who face the great stress of loss of jobs and financial difficulties All who face loneliness, isolation, depression, or anxiety about the future

Dublin OhioHealth and all hospitals: prayers for staff, patients, and families; prayers for medical staff at all hospitals that continue to be impacted by COVID-19 as numbers of new cases and hospitalizations continue to rise

Friendships and family and work relationships that may be strained because of the stresses of the pandemic

Jeff Pettit's Uncle Bob, who suffered a TIA last week; prayers for good recovery and that the treatment be effective

Peggy and Dennis Barber's daughter-in-law as her health challenges continue

Ed Whiteman, friend of Rebecca Price's family, who suffered a serious fall and is hospitalized

Darlene Pape's niece Jaclyn and her husband AJ Mast; AJ was diagnosed with leukemia this week and will be hospitalized until Christmas; prayers for AJ's treatments to be effective, for Jaclyn to be strong and resilient as she works, cares their young son, and travels a long distance back and forth between home and the James hospital

Tom Fletcher, as he struggles to recover from hip replacement surgery; prayers for Chlois as well
